Sashes are almost invariably worn with every kind of toilet; the bows are generally as large as it is possible to tie them, and the long ends usually finish off with a deep fringe. Now and then the bow is tied so as to catch up a portion of the skirt behind; at others, it is formed of very wide ribbon, and is perfectly flat in shape, the ends being short and slightly pointed, and bordered all round with fringe, so that the whole appears to be the short skirts of a jacket.

This name was adopted from the fact that it is the only article ever known to stimulate a healthy condition of the scalp, and to actually produce a new growth of Hair. The proprietor has experimented with all the articles offered to the public for these parposes, and finds that they close up the porces of the Scalp, and thus prevent rather than promote the growth of the Hair. the pores of the Scalp, and thus prevent rather than promote the growth of the Hair.
